

National Taiwan Normal University

Regulations for the Establishment of the Madam Huang Scholarship

Last amended on December 24, 2013

1. Quota and Amount:

- (1) Three undergraduate students at the University; the number of recipients shall be adjusted according to the interest income earned in the current year.
- (2) Amount: To be determined based on the interest income generated.

2. Eligibility and Criteria:

- (1) Female students currently enrolled in full-time or evening programs at the University who were born in Taiwan, regardless of province of origin, but excluding overseas Chinese students.
- (2) Students enrolled in the evening program must not hold any employment.
- (3) The student's average academic grade for each semester of the previous academic year must be 70 or above.
- (4) Students from economically disadvantaged backgrounds.

3. Application Period and Procedures

- (1) Application: Applicants shall complete the application form, attach a complete household registration transcript and the transcript for the previous academic year, and submit their applications to their respective departments.
- (2) Preliminary Review: Each department shall conduct a preliminary review based on the eligibility criteria and make recommendations accordingly. If applicants are otherwise similarly qualified, priority shall be given to those who demonstrate a strong commitment to public service, a willingness to help others, and an excellent conduct record.
- (3) Review and Approval: The Office of Student Affairs shall compile the recommendations and submit them to the President for approval.
- (4) Scholarship Award: The Office of Student Affairs shall submit the approved list of recipients to the Accounting Office, and the Cashier Division shall disburse the scholarship.

4. Fund Custody and Utilization:

The University's Scholarship Management Committee shall be the custodian of this scholarship. Both the principal and accrued interest of the fund shall be used for scholarship purposes (or, alternatively, only the accrued interest shall be used for such purposes).

5. The Regulations and any amendments thereto shall become effective after approval by the Scholarship Management Committee and ratification by the University President.
